For the love of Thai

IT was a fine mix of food and art at Oko, the pan Asian restaurant at The Lalit Ashok this weekend.

Esteemed guests including those from the hotel and fashion industries, educational and medical firms gathered at this rooftop hub to celebrate the climax of the restaurant's month long Thai food festival.

The special guest of the night was Hema Narayanan, a well-known photojournalist and writer, based out of namma city. Narayanan's exclusive photographs on Thailand were on display during the food fest. Named 'Flavor of Thailand', her 20 well-chosen photographs showcased the culture, lifestyle, monuments and abstracts of Thailand.

The atmosphere at the do was vibrant as people of various calibre were left enthralled by Hema's photographs and the wonderful ambience of Oko, and the yummy munchions and cocktails of course.
